She was there for a minute and then went to leave the store.

Walmart announced a reduction of 450 associates, or 2.5% of the more than 18,000 employed at its headquarter complex.

Individuals may also engage in "prescription shopping" among different doctors to receive larger quantities of the drug to sell.

"Rapamycin not only exists in use in human medicine, but it's only given to people who are really, really sick," Austad says.

Anyone know what the problem could be?